Local Dulness as an Incident in Money Market History.

WALL STREET, | SUNDAY, Feb. 22, 1874. | The week just closed has impressed itself upon the life and thought of the street in two ways that it will carry through all time as the record of its influence. In the first place it has put the New York Stock Exchange on its defence before the world. Cambling is a term applied in certain circles of contracted understanding to the daily operations which take place in the various stock exchanges of the world. The fraud or forgery of last week places the New York Stock Exchange in the position that, if not ferreted out and punished, it will bring upon it the od.um of a conduct of business that, even among gamblers, is regarded with feelings of disgust. The street seems to feel that way, from the fact that the Governing Committee, through whose weakness, imbediifty or imperiect direction the fraud was rendered possible, are just now the subject of

A LARGE AMOUNT OF CENSURE. In fact, the chances of their removal are being canvassed. However, this is a matter for the Stock Exchange, who must accept the acts of its appointed servants or masters-call it which you will—as its own, and the question is still pending on the street in this relation, "What is it going to do about it?" Something must be done to lift the incubes of distrust from off the financial body which the Stock Exchange represents. It is no onger a good joke to fleece the outsiders out of their small investments, even if it be only to the extent of $2,000,000. We are no longer in the wilderness. The application of steam power and the telegraph has made New York socially a suburb of endon or Paris or Berlin. Consequently, we aim at respectability. The little game practised in the matter of Wabash and Western Union was not respectable. It savored something of the style of dealing which misinformed writers of fiction and in some cases imperfect observers are apt to give of the American habit. This slander has lasted too long. We are not a dishonest people, else would among a sharply suspicious people which came so near bringing us to grief last fall. The late traud in the Stock Exchange which, like blessings in dis guise, has come to us in doubtful shape, furnishes to the Governing Committee an opportunity to vindicate our character abroad. The question plainly is asked on the street, Is it capable of risng to an understanding of the situation that will determine prompt action or does it need the infusion of new thought? Time only can determine this, unless the Stock Exchange presses home a solution of the popular inquiry.

This was the local sensation. Apart from that the general Wall street markets were extremely dull, waiting upon the action of Congress. Even that body, although probably in earnest in its effort to meet the popular wish and the popular necessity at the same time—it would be treason to republican institutions to doubt that purposemoves very slowly. The discussion, however, has evoked certain conclusions as likely to result which are accepted by leading minds on the street.

THE LEGALIZATION OF THE ISSUE OF THE FORTY-

reserve is accepted as almost un fait accompli. This is rendered necessary by the necessities of the republican party, which cannot afford to go before the people impugning the good faith or good judgment of its own Treasury Secretary; for, whatever may be the private points of difference etween the Secretary and the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, or the Committee on Appropriations or the Banking and Currency Comattee, the republican party is responsible for Mr. Richardson and his acts to-day as they are responsible for President Grant. It is the weakest point in their armor, and they are not going to weaken at further by advertising the fact. Thus we may salely count on $400,000,000 of legal tender circu lation; and the question comes up here directly. If the country is able to absorb $356,000,000, is it likely to be burdened by the addition of $44,000,000 And common sense says, No. We will soon grow up to it. Better, anyhow, the limit of $400,000,000 toan the present effort at producing all elastic currency in the daily alternate contraction or expansion, which is about on a par with the silver resumption plan. It is sound policy to take

THE GOODS THE GODS PROVIDE: but it is to be hoped for the credit of human nature and the future of this great and glorious country that when next we want a Secretary of the Treasury the gods will see that they have on hand a better article. We stand before the world to-day in the throes of a financial labor and not one in our midst able to promise a successful accouch ment. It is the parturient mountain, and the chances are ten to one that the result will be a ridiculous mouse. Thus it is necessary to get rid of theories to a certain extent in attempting to deal with this question. One must bring his thought down to the level of the average Congressional understanding, and when he gets there he is likely to learn that the average Congressional un derstanding is nearer right than he was himself. Optimism belongs to the millennium. The present calls simply for availability. So Congress has dealt, or seemed to deal, with free banking, which it has had before it. Free banking, pure and simple, is impracticable at the present time. Whether it is a lack of inherent honesty or that the present national bank system has demoralized us, it would not be safe for us to go back even to such a perfect system of free banking as existed in this State before the war-the best, perhaps. that was ever devised. But we may have free banking upon government securities as a basis of circulation. Of course, it is only a euphemism to call this free banking, but it is a step in that direction. Besides, it will nelp us in the process of funding. Bring out the 4% and 4 per cent bonds, and keep our interest at home. There is a large instinct among our people now in lavor of a new class of security that shall represent the English consol, and be either irredeemable or have so long to run as to insure a safe annuity for at least one generation. There is a large amount of trust funds that would seek such an investment at once. Late events, especially the recent panic, have brought home to us a knowledge of the error we committed in attempting to pay off any portion of the principal of our debt before maturity. The hundred and odd millions paying 6 per cent interest, invested in the more than 6 per cent return, and so left us a profit after paying this interest. In other words, these millions borrowed at 6 per cent were

WORTH MORE TO US than the relief we gained in returning them. Our true policy is to postpone the payment of our debt to such time that the country has grown and developed resources which will dwarf the debt away beyond its present proportions in relation to production. In the mean time let us use the money to stimulate such We must not halt in our railroad ouiding. The Credit Mobilier will have been a much greater blow to us materially than it was ocially if it checks railroad enterprise. Here the

FAIRORA GOES IN advance of the immigrant. We must not be wholly discouraged by the failure of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The greatest wonder in its case is that the shrewdness which built causes enumerated, it has not, as yet, resulted in up the house that it ruined did not serve to preserve that house from such a dangerous attachment. It was never a sound financial idea. To that line of road, and so furnish traffic, it would have been necessary to depopulate Sweden and Norway, and, perhaps, Finland. Ireland might have peopled even this region, as she has so many others, from the tropics to the poles, but Ireland is pretty well drained. We must look elsewhere for those

UNITS OF HUMAN ENDRAVOR upon which both our understanding and our progress must in the future rest. Alsace and Lorwhence to excite emigration and settlement here. The people of these provinces are now in just that frame of mind in respect to their government that is provocative of a change of residence It is well for us now to bear these things in mind in the present prostration of enterprise.

DULNESS NOW DOES NOT MEAN DULNESS FOR EVER, and if we borrow a little light from the future to help us out of our present straitened condition we are certain to repay it many fold. One of the largest evidences of this current duiness is to be found in the indifference felt on the street, even to such an important publication as the bank statement. The banks have more money than they can use. This is the secret of the indifference felt towards their usual weekly exhibit. Indifference in so far as current dealings are concerned extends in like degree to the entire street. The prevailing feeling is one of expectation, the thoughtful men awaiting the action of Congress, and the Bashi-Bazouks, impressed by the atmosphere that surrounds them, without knowing how they are indusneed, imitating Wilkins Micawber's example and waiting for something to turn up. The following is has no feature of interest. It is unequivocally duil, and it may be here remarked that only out of a condition of the most extreme dulness could such an impudent fraud be cooked practised as was that of last The condition of activity in the market would seem to induce a corresponding de-gree of watchill sharpness in the mind of the operator that renders the practice of imposition more dangerous in such times than when the intellect is off guard as it were, reposing in that placid state of indifference to the accidents of life which simply means there is not interest enough in the market or money in it for any event within the ordinary range of human forecast to produce excitement. It was thus the forgery of last week had its influence. Every newspaper man will understand how impossible the uttering of such a barefaced, false token would have been with any city editor in New York. Let him limit his surprise, however, that it was successfully uttered upon the Stock Exchange, where a larger knowledge of the immediate subject would be expected than even from the average city editor, in learning that so great was the prevailing dulness that the possibility of anything occurring to create animation was so far removed from the thought of the governing committee that it was virtually

AN ANALYSIS OF THE BANK STATEMENT, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BANK STATEMENT, which has this much of encouragement about it, that it represents the employment of two millions more dollars in the operation of the domestic ex-changes than was employed the week previous.

CAUGHT NAPPING. In this condition of feeling on the street it is not surprising that the holiday on Monday should provoke a strict observance. This is a good sign. Sentiment has its market value as well as everything else. The fact that we are beginning to cultivate it shows two things in a financial sense. The first is that we can afford it. That is, that our national life has grown to such proportions that it does not call for persistent uninterrupted struggle to support it. We have time to take a holiday without suffering too much loss. This evidences something further. Holidays may be said to be investment days. Thus from the working days of the year we accumulate sufficient to enable us to purchase a day of rest occasionally. These, so far as the primal cause operates, are dies non. It is so much emancipation. We have too few such dies non in this country, but we are growing up to them. In other words

WE ARE GETTING TO BE ABLE TO AFFORD IT, as they can in the older countries, where the tastes are perhaps better regulated or controlled than ours, or surrounding nature does not challenge so much effort. These thoughts are addressed procession of the centuries is not after all a very varied exhibition. Rome wast so was Palmyra. Nineveh and Babylon are only words to us. But we inherit their glories so far as these were capable of transmission, and human nature remains the same. All of which means that the New York Stock Exchange adjourned over Monday, out of respect to the memory of George Washington, and the street generally will imitate its example, there not being sufficient temptation in the market to induce opposition.

closed Saturday night 4 to 5 per cent to the street on collateral and 6 to 7 on best commercial discounts. Foreign exchange was steady on the bapaid out in gold $499,000 in redemption of the principal of the public debt and $393,000 gold interest. The customs receipts in gold Saturday were $485,000, and for the week $2,774,905. Gold vas firmer at the close of the week, but there is not enough in the market at the present time to furnish special interest.

The trade movement was only moderate last week, being checked by the uncertainty regarding the future of the currency valuation. & is pretty generally taken for granted that the nation's misrepresentatives at Washington will hatch up some sort of financial project which will insure a further material inflation of the currency, and, by consequence, of currency values, and so higher prices view of this fact holders are not so anxious to dispose of their goods as they were some little time since. so that the merchandise marts

Breadstuffs were heavy for the most part, but toward the latter part of the week there was a partial recovery, and a better feeling obtained. The receipts, meanwhile, were fair-heavy, indeed, for this season of the year-when the railroads form the only means of inland transportation. The corn market ruled 'dull and heavy during nearly the entire week, and prices declined materially. The movement in provisions was slow and conflued almost exclusively to speculative transactions for future delivery. On 'Ghange on Saturday flour met with a moderate demand and the transactions were at steady prices. Wheat was less active, but firm, and the recent advanced prices were maintained. Corn reacted and prices. Wheat was less active, but firm, and the recent advanced prices were maintained. Corn reacted and was decidedly higher, closing strong at an established advance of from 2c. a 3c. per bushel. Oats were only in moderate request, but were a shade firmer. Comparatively little business was transacted in provisions. Pork was not quotably changed, while lard ruled a shade firmer. Groceries were dull and easier. Cotton ruled dull and nominal for lots on the "spot," but for forward delivery the market was active at an advance of %c. per pound. Ocean frieghts were quiet, but the market was steadler. Petroleum was dull and values were to a great extent nominal. Spirits of turpentine was entirely nominal, while rosin met with a fair demand at rather better prices. Whisey was dull and lower. Note.—There will be no "Commercial Report," in Tuesday's issue. Exchange closed on Monday.

SUICIDE OF AN ACTOR.

Information reached the Coroner's Office yesterday morning that Nottmish Smith, an actor, about thirty-five years of age, and a native of one of the Southern States, had committed suicide in his room, at the Madison Avenue Hotel, the day pre vious, by shooting himself through the heart with a bullet from a revolver, which, it is supposed, he had purchased for the purpose. On Friday, it is alleged, deceased swallowed a dose of morphine with sucidal intent, but that failing in its effect, he resorted to the use of the pistol. Deceased was out of employment, and his means being nearly, if not quite, exhausted, he became very despondent and preferred death to becoming dependent on his relatives or friends. No other cause except the one stated is known for the act. Ooroner Eickhoff has assumed charge of the case.
